To meet the current needs of researchers who perform systematic reviews in health care settings, libraries need to provide high-quality educational services for researchers as part of their systematic review services. A team of librarians with diverse skills is also important for ensuring the growth and sustainability of systematic review services. This commentary describes a new team-based systematic review service model that can transform systematic review services by providing a pathway for librarians to offer a comprehensive educational service for systematic review research in a variety of health sciences library settings.

Postoperative complications
Ruiz-Tovar, J; Morales-Castineiras, J
May-jun 2010 | CIRUGIA Y CIRUJAN
Colon surgery comprises a high number of surgical and medical postoperative complications. Postoperative ileus, bleeding, fistula, and abscess are common complications. Small intestine resection and ileostomy are common complications of colorectal surgery. Like any major surgery, it may present diverse complications. The most frequent surgical complications of colon surgery are abdominal sepsis, ileus, and abscess. ... Show more

Export 2 documents to EndNote as a RIS file ?

The RIS format is used for exporting references from Scopus to a reference management tool (e.g., Zotero, EndNote, RefWorks). To import references to EndNote, open the .ris file with EndNote and follow the prompts. Make sure that .ris files are associated with EndNote on your system.

The screenshot shows the Google Scholar search results for 'ascites'. The search bar at the top contains 'ascites' and a magnifying glass icon. Below the search bar, the 'Articles' section shows 'About 791,000 results'. On the left sidebar, there are filters for 'Any time' (Since 2017, Since 2016, Since 2013, Custom range...), 'Sort by relevance' (Sort by date), and checkboxes for 'include patents' and 'include citations'. A 'Create alert' button is also visible. The main search results list includes a highlighted article: 'Tumor cells secrete a vascular permeability factor that promotes accumulation of ascites fluid' by DR Senger, SJ Galli, A.M. Dvorak, C.A. Perruzzi, V.S. Harvey, and H.F. Dvorak. The article title and authors are highlighted in green. A red circle highlights the citation count '99' next to a star icon. Below the article title, there are links for '[PDF] Intracellular spectroscopic analysis of tumor cells' and '[HTML] Definition of ascites syndrome in cancer'. The 'Cite' dialog box is open, showing citation formats for MLA, APA, Chicago, Harvard, and Vancouver. The 'EndNote' option is highlighted with a red box. To the right of the dialog box, there are links for '[HTML] sciencemag.org Findit@NCKU', '[PDF] acs.org Findit@NCKU', and '[HTML] wiley.com Findit@NCKU'. At the bottom of the dialog box, there are links for 'BibTeX', 'EndNote', 'RefMan', and 'RefWorks'. A file explorer window at the bottom left shows a file named 'scholar.enw'.

Serologic response to coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) vaccination in patients with immune-mediated inflammatory diseases: a systematic review and meta-analysis

Gastroenterology 2021

Accession Number: 34599933 DOI: 10.1053/j.gastro.2021.09.055

<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/34599933>

BACKGROUND AND AIMS: Patients with immune-mediated inflammatory diseases (IMIDs) have an increased risk of COVID-19, primarily attributed to the use of immunosuppressive drugs such as glucocorticoids, which may attenuate the response to vaccines. This meta-analysis aims to assess the serologic response to framework of digital aging is proposed as the conclusion of this study.

Active aging

To live a healthy life, Kerschner and Pegues (1998) denoted that meaningful involvement, positive mental outlook, and relationships with others would be the keys to healthy aging. Particularly staying in active manner and functioning as a productive citizen are the essential elements in meaningful involvement for life. Prior to the development of active aging, the United States back in the 1990s was advocating the productive aging that focused on the production of goods and services, which produced social and economic value (Hinterlong, Morrow-Howell, & Sherraden, 2001). The involvement in paid work, volunteering, lifelong learning, traveling, and other meaningful activities were also discussed (Kerschner & Pegues, 1998). To sustain a productive way of lifestyle from independence to interdependence (Kerschner & Pegues, 1998), older people could contribute to the society by dedicating to the care of youth and the disadvantaged groups, even more, delivering values and wisdom to the younger generations (Butler, 2010).

of the information and its applicability to a specific situation, and analyze, understand, and use the information to make good health decisions (Shipman, Kurtz-Rossi, & Funk, 2009).” Lacking of computer access is one major reason for the seniors who were willing to approach the Internet, but eventually did not lead to significant usage of the Internet. Let along the physical and cognitive impairments, another concern for the elderly to access health health information on the Internet.

ii. Supportive networks and services

Williamson and Asla (2009) further stated that even the oldest old aged 85 and above still have information needs. However, unlike the purposeful information seeking, older

Export Traveling Library

The screenshot shows the Microsoft Word interface with the EndNote 20 ribbon active. The ribbon includes options like 'Go to EndNote', 'Edit & Manage Citation(s)', and 'Export to EndNote'. The 'Export to EndNote' dropdown menu is open, showing options: 'Export Traveling Library', 'Export Word Citations', and 'Export Word Master List'. The 'Export Traveling Library' option is selected. A dialog box titled 'Export Traveling Library' is open, showing 'Export Library to:' with two radio buttons: 'An existing EndNote library:' (selected) and 'A new EndNote library'. Below the first option is a dropdown menu showing 'My EndNote Library' and a 'Browse...' button. At the bottom of the dialog are 'OK', 'Cancel', and 'Help' buttons.
